Do you have 15 minutes free tomorrow am by chance? This would be on background only.

Richard,

Thanks for sending this. I would love to speak to someone on background, if that can be arranged sometime today or tomorrow AM. Thanks,
Nick

Nick-- here's a general update on Schilke activities. If you need more I can get you someone on background, content would cover much of below.

Separately (I imagine), I'd like to check back in with Tricia Pfeiffer at some point on Jacki Schilke's case.

EPA is working with the State of North Dakota to help assess water and air quality concerns at the Schilke property. EPA is facilitating a review of information provided by the State and the Schilke's by the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR), a federal agency with expertise in evaluating health and environmental data. Both EPA and the State agree that additional review of the data will be helpful in trying to resolve the homeowner's concerns. EPA will be consulting with the State in the next several weeks to discuss possible next steps with respect to additional sampling as well as ATSDR's findings and recommendations.
